The 1980's was an exciting and progressive decade, reflected in the big architectural changes we saw in home designs. Cathedral ceilings, wall panelling, timber ceilings and exposed beams were popular. They created homes with interest, warmth and a heightened sense of space.

Built in 1983, 9 Westminster Avenue encompasses the best of those architectural features blended with sophisticated updates to create a bold and beautiful home for 2020 living.

All three bedrooms feature floating floors and robes, while the master bedroom boasts a walk-in robe and sliding door
